Lynda Smith

Lynda started piano lessons at an early age and continued to work toward going to college to become a music teacher. She graduated from Lebanon Valley College in Annville, PA with a Bachelor of Science degree in Music Education K-12. She taught vocal and instrumental music-K-8 and then focused on Junior High music featuring choral events and musical plays. During this time she became a Music Therapist (Degree from Montclair State University, NJ) and was the primary music teacher for all the special needs children in the district.

Lynda taught at Yamaha Music School for the local music chain in New Jersey and got interested in the music products industry. After working at Freehold Music Center, Lynda went on to work for Technics Musical Instruments, a division of Panasonic Corporation USA. From there Lynda moved to California to work for Roland Corporation and eventually became GM and VP of the Contemporary Keyboard Division.

After retirement Lynda had her own teaching studio in Las Cruces, New Mexico. She loves working with children and adults in teaching piano and guitar. Lynda teaches piano and guitar at Key To Music.
